Dear Sir,

I am writing to you for some advice and I hope you will be able to help me.

My brothers and I need to build a house. However these houses need to be able to withstand a wolf. He is a terrible wolf that continuously causes us distress. He huffs and puffs and blows our houses down... and we are fed up!

My youngest brother has decided to build his house out of straw. What do you think of his idea?

My other brother had the idea of building a house out of sticks. Do you think this is a good idea? Will it stop the wolf from getting to us and eating us?

I can't decide what to build my house from. Please can you suggest some suitable materials that I could use?

Any advice would be greatly appreciated. Please reply as soon as possible

Yours Sincerely
